Steven Gitelis, MD, Named a Chicago Top Doctor

Steven Gitelis, MD, has been selected as one of this year's Top Doctors in Orthopedics and Sports Medicine by Chicago magazine. His selection will be featured in the October 2020 issue.

"I'm honored to be chosen for this award and grateful for the recognition from my peers," says Gitelis. "Throughout my 40-plus years of practicing medicine, I've focused on the three A's: ability, affability, and availability. Ability and bedside manner speak for themselves, but availability—to be easily accessible—is what has driven me since I started in this field."

The list of top doctors was compiled by Chicago magazine's research partner, Castle Connolly Medical Ltd., a health care research and information company founded in 1992. They survey hundreds of thousands of physicians, as well as academic medical centers, specialty hospitals, and regional and community hospitals across the nation to arrive at their rankings.

Dr. Gitelis has repeatedly received recognition for his outstanding care. He has been previously named a Top Doctor by Chicago magazine in 2012, 2014, 2016, 2018, and 2019 and was listed in Castle Connolly's America's Top Doctors from 2013-2020.

He is a highly regarded expert in the area of orthopedic oncology and limb reconstruction. Dr. Gitelis currently serves as the Director of Musculoskeletal Oncology at the Rush Cancer Center and the Director of the Rush Center for Limb Preservation. His numerous appointments also include Rush Medical College Endowed Professor of Orthopedic Oncology, Director of the Section of Orthopedic Oncology at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center and Chairman of the 20th Century Orthopedic Association.
